

Ghana Independent Broadcasters Association Congratulates Samuel Nartey George on His Nomination as Minister of Communication, Digital Technology, and Innovations

Accra, January 24, 2025

The President and Executive Council on behalf of the Ghana Independent Broadcasters Association (GIBA) extends heartfelt congratulations to Samuel Nartey George, the Member of Parliament for Ningo-Prampram, on his nomination as Minister of Communication, Digital Technology, and Innovations by His Excellency, President John Dramani Mahama. This significant appointment is not only a testament to Mr. George's dedication and expertise but also a remarkable stride towards advancing Ghana's digital landscape.

As an established leader within the National Democratic Congress (NDC), and a respected voice in the Ghanaian Parliament since 2016, Mr. George brings a wealth of experience to this newly restructured ministry. His prior role in the Communications Directorate at the Presidency and as a Member of the Parliamentary Select Committee on Communications, provides him with unique insights into both legislative and executive functions, which will be invaluable as he embarks on this new chapter of responsibility.

GIBA recognizes the critical focus of the Ministry on essential areas such as digital infrastructure development, policy formulation, digital inclusion, broadcasting and cybersecurity. As Ghana stands at the forefront of technological advancement, Mr. George's leadership is pivotal in ensuring that these initiatives are effectively implemented, thereby enhancing the nation's ability to leverage technology for development and economic growth.

We trust that Mr. George will advocate for the interests of the broadcasting sector and work collaboratively with independent broadcasters to promote a vibrant media landscape that upholds high standards and ethical practices. His commitment to digital rights and inclusion aligns well with GIBA's goals of maintaining the independence of the broadcasting sector and ensuring equitable access to digital technologies for all Ghanaians.

We commend President Mahama for his strategic decision to appoint knowledgeable and experienced individuals like Samuel Nartey George in key ministerial roles, as this reflects a commitment to addressing the pressing challenges facing our nation. We look forward to the positive changes and innovations Mr. George will spearhead in the digital domain.

Once again, we congratulate Mr. Samuel Nartey George on this well-deserved appointment and wish him great success as he undertakes the important tasks ahead.
